COLEBROOK ACADEMY AT GOULD FRIDAY

PROSPECTS OF REAL BASKETBALL FOR BETHEL FANS THIS WEEK

Basketball will be ushered into Bethel Friday night with a bang when Colebrook Academy invades the local stronghold. Colebrook has boasted blue teams in the past and although nothing has been yet heard of them this year it goes without saying that there should be a real battle in Wilham Bingham Gymnasium at eight o'clock.

The "Blue and Gold" basketballers have won one game and show promise of developing into a strong quintet. Stanley Allen, who was unable to play in the opening game because of a foot injury, may be ready again for some action. It is hoped that the whole squad will be in fine condition for this opening game at Bethel.

The management is getting the gymnasium in shape to accommodate a large crowd. Bleachers are being put up on the stage for the Gould rooting section while seats will be placed around the floor for those who prefer seeing the game from that angle rather than from the balconies. The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock and Irving Todd of Mexico will act as referee. It is hoped that the townspeople will pack the house on Friday.

GIRL RESERVE PLAY POSTPONED

The annual Girl Reserve Play which was to have been held on Thursday of next week has been postponed until January 12th, because of the many dramatic attractions being given before Christmas. A further notice will appear in the Citizen.

GOULD TEAMS DEFEAT GORHAM

BROWNE LEADS VARSITY TO 29-14 WIN—MARTINSON THE HIGH SCORER FOR END TEAM

Gould Academy opened its 1932-33 basketball campaign with a 29-14 victory over a fighting Gorham High School team. The floor game of the locals was successful in affording the winners shot after shot at the basket. Had the team been good shots or had a lucky night the score could easily have been more than doubled. However, the victory was successful in showing that the team has got the right and ability to open up scoring possibilities.

The team as a unit played a nice brand of ball. Browne led the scoring with five field goals and a free throw for eleven points, while McNally, Vail, and Lane scored four each. The men covered their opponents well and kept them to six field goals. Danies covered the elusive Brown well but his play on the offense was ragged.

The second team opened up in great style, for when the first quarter was over the score stood 17-2 for Gould. Martinson was hot in this period dropping five field goals. He was then withdrawn from the game to save for the varsity game. After this period the game turned out to be a wild affair, like so many grammar school students trying to catch an elusive ball.

DR. COOMBS SPEAKS ON HEALTH WORK

TELLS GORHAM NORMAL SCHOOL STUDENTS HOW TO CHECK COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

Dr. A. H. Coombs addressed the student body at chapel exercises Wednesday morning. Dr. Coombs is director of the Bureau of Health in the State of Maine. The State is now spending $140,000 annually to conserve the health of the 800,000 people in the state," said Dr. Coombs. He traced the development of the state board of health and spoke of the importance of its work. Dr. Coombs told of the importance to teachers of knowledge concerning the prevention of spread of communicable diseases. He spoke of methods by which the teacher could check the spread of disease and ways by which they could secure the cooperation of the State Board of Health in getting medical care for the school.

Mr. Ben H. Spence, Toronto, Canada, a representative of the Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Association addressed the student body Friday morning on the subject, "Canadian Systems of Control of Liquor Traffic." Mr. Spence is a journalist and an investigator and has spent some time in the city of Washington as a representative of the press. Mr. Spence said, "Most Americans are laboring under three misapprehensions concerning Canadian liquor laws. They believe that the Canadian liquor control system provides, first for absolute abolition of private ownership; second that sale of liquor is under government control; and third the saloon is abolished." Continuing Mr. Spence directed these beliefs. "The entire manufacturing end of the liquor business is privately owned," stated Mr. Spence in proving that the first belief was false. "Insofar as any liquor system functions as a liquor control system," said Mr. Spence in speaking of government control of the sale of liquor. "The saloons have been abolished in name only," he said discussing the third statement. "There is no practical difference between the saloon and its present day substitute, the beer parlor."

Mr. Spence met several classes of students in open forum sessions in Russell Hall and later in Gorham Hall. Speaking of the report of the Wickersham commission, he called it "a monumental work. The commission is of the opinion there is no adequate enforcement," he said these United States must use as a model, namely our strict enforcement provisions rather than our weak law to copy. The recommendation of the Wickersham Commission to guard to changes in the enforcement system are similar to the Canadian enforcement laws."

THE FINGER POINTS In and Around Bethel

Gordon E. Lathrop

Com'on Make It Interestin'!

When we aren't wrong we must be right. Ain't that so? It is a rare occasion when we receive a difference of opinion such as in the next column. Which is inclined to give us a swelled head. Why, if the readers of this column keep up their attitude of passive agreement, we might even clutter up the ballot and run for elective office. Surely anyone that gets so little protest on such pointed views is entitled to public recognition. But everyone can't be illiterate in Bethel. Agree or disagree, as you prefer, but send in your views. If they are signed we'll print them, with or without the name.

Pardon Us!

An old farmer from down Rumford way tells us that it isn't necessary to use perfume on barn animals to stop the odor of the barn. "Plain lime," he says, "not only will cure the smell but make the manure more effective as a top dressing." Now that's on good authority and we wonder if some people know that lime is fairly cheap? As for the henyard, another farmer says there is less reason for it polluting the neighbors. "A henyard, properly cleaned up, is not smelly," he says. "If the dressing from the pen is not piled up so it gets to heating, it will give off very little odor." Now there are two opinions, each expressing the uneasiness of making the village air unhealthy.

Murder! Murder! Murder!

Notice is hereby given to all four-legged house pets of the feline tribe whose stumping ground is around Railroad Street and lower Mechanic Street that some two-legged creature who calls himself human has vowed, and is carrying out a threat, that not a cat shall live as long as his poison lasts. Already six victims have fallen to his dose; housewives are tearfully regretting their passing; and vengeance is declared on the murderer. What a heart of gold this thing called human must have! Because he is pestered at what one cat, or its owner, has done he grants himself a license to kill off "the old minks' best friend" the "house cat." It is cheerfully hoped he takes a dose of his own medicine big enough to make him awfully sick.

Let's Bring It Out of the Bushes
Where is the Bethel Library? The stranger asks. But though you direct him exactly it is a hard place to find unless you tell him that it is surrounded by shrubbery and bushes he must push aside to get at the front of it. Once inside he finds cheerful, efficient service in a rather crowded sphere. There are volumes and volumes of almost any subject from A-Z, from Zoology to the latest in the history of the world. Lots of them have been moved down cellar or next door somewhere else for lack of space and that's too bad. We are told that plans have been made to build a real library some day but that lack of funds is the hold up. Which reminds me of the day before the town contributed an annual sum to library maintenance. Then, we are informed, different organizations gave teas, dramas, and entertainments to raise "library money." It might still prove an effective way to raise the cash for a new library.

Sportsmanship

There are as many chances to display a sense of sportsmanship in hunting as there are in the more public fields of group games like baseball and football. It is just as sporting to be a good loser in one as the other. A recent case illustrates this. Two fellows were hunting, unbeknown to one another, in different parts of the same wooded area. One scared up a deer, shot at it, and quite evidently wounded it. He followed it a good part of the morning. The other fellow saw a deer in a clump of bushes, shot at it and saw it fall. As he was putting his tag on it the first fellow came up and discovered that the deer shot was the one he had followed so long. Surely it was a disappointment to watch someone else claim it, even though the chance of ever catching up with it had been slim. But the only sporting thing to do was for fellow number one to go on hunting up another deer. For the raising of a game warden is that whoever kills the deer is entitled to it. Instead, while the second hunter went for help to haul the deer, the first fellow returned with a friend and, unexpectedly finding the beast guarded, put up an argument over the game. He evidently knew he was wrong for he didn't stay now about 20 and more promised. Now, instead of complimenting the second fellow on his good shooting, the first is showing his sportsmanship by belittling the feat and encouraging his friends and other people to do likewise.

THE READER COMMENTS

That Bounty on Bear and Porcupine
Bethel, Maine, Dec. 5, 1932.
The Oxford County Citizen.

Gentlemen:—
I feel called upon to reply to Mr. Gordon E. Lathrop's article on bounties in your December first issue.

Mr. Lathrop may be very intelligent on some matters, but on hunters, farming, and woodcraft his knowledge is very limited; yes, even about like hens' teeth, if he really believes as he has written.

First we'll take his statement "porcupines are used for target practice by most hunters." On the contrary they are never used for practice by any hunter for a man that will go into the woods hunting deer or any large game, that will shoot at a porcupine, squirrel, rabbit, or partridge is not a hunter.

I claim to know a little about hunting myself, for I am a direct descendant of the Days of Wesley, Maine, one of Maine's choice hunting grounds, and if you think the Days of Washington County are not hunters, just inquire in that section of the state. Also it may interest you to know that it was my grandfather, Samuel Day, of Wesley, Maine, who won the State championship on bear trapping, with a record of over three hundred (300) bounties collected, let alone many that were killed when there was no bounty.

But to get back to the subject of porcupines, Mr. Lathrop is not a farmer, for if he was and was fortunate enough not to lose a horse, cattle, sheep, or dog, he certainly would have seen his neighbors' critters suffer the agony which is commonly inflicted by those destructive walking plagues.

The farmer who is fortunate enough to own a small piece of woodland very commonly has it destroyed by such vermin. An axe or saw cannot be left in the woods without them chewing the handle out of some if one happens near. In one incident I know of a hunter who left his car parked by the roadside for three days and nights only to have three of the wooden spokes to be nearly chewed off. So, beware sportsmen, and equip your car with dice or wire wheels.

And now as for lincing a hunter with any great amount of enthusiasm for hunting bear without any bounty, he would have a peculiar twist in his brain. Last Friday, Dec. 2nd, I followed a bear from 5:30 in the morning until 4:00 in the afternoon, up and down mountainsides, through swamps and thickets where I had to go on hands and knees to get through at all, finally ending up on Saddleback mountain. "The bear is still able to make tracks" but I was rather weary. As most people know these animals destroy many sheep each season which the State has to pay for. Now comes the question of economy I ask you, in it economy to repeat the bounty only to let these animals increase at an enormous rate or to keep our bounty and entirely exterminate these pests? If we repeat every cent that has been paid for bounties is an absolute waste, "thrown away."

If we keep the bounty laws it will cost but little in comparison to the dollars of destruction they do and put a check to their increase.

Bounty or not?

WILLIAM H. DAY

Thank you, Mr. Day! It is well worth being on the wrong side of the fence to get such an interesting letter to pass on to our readers. G. E. L.
